Mark asked if the $16,000 in grant revenue was typical of what BPL receives. Craft responded it was much higher, due to now requiring all conference attendees to apply for the continuing education grant from the Library of Michigan.

Building Committee:

Pisano reported that the Building Committee met on March 25 and April 8. Full minutes from these meetings are on pages 17-18 of the April Board packet. Youth staff have added an overflow room for Wednesday story times.

The IDEA Taskforce plans to use Beanstack for DEI training during the next Staff Development Day. Craft will be hosting a special book club at Next on May 1 to discuss Firekeeper's Daughter by Angeline Boulley.

Two staff members attended the Computers in Libraries conference, three attended the Innovative Users Group conference, and the nine attended the PLA National Conference. Staff reports can be found on pages 29-37 of the April Board packet.

Zoe Lusk and Mia Gusho have been hired as Library Pages.

Craft will present the Library's FY2024-25 budget to the City of Birmingham at its Budget Hearing on April 27.

Mark inquired about the status of the Library of things. Craft said the goal is to have it ready for Summer Reading.

The Spring Sale will be held during the first week of May. May 3 will be Friends members only, May 4 will be a normal sale day, and May 5 will be $5 bag day. The next annual meeting will be on Tuesday, May 14 at 7:00 p.m. in the Jeanne Lloyd Room, and must have 15 people to meet quorum. Pam DeWeese is leaving the Friends Board. Deb Mohatarem is stepping down as Book Sale Chairperson. Michelle Hollo will be ascending to that role.

Beverly Hills: There was no report.

Bloomfield Hills: There was no report.

Bingham Farms: Kathy Mechigian asked Craft about Bingham Farms participation numbers. Craft responded that the Village Manager receives a report on checkouts and cardholders, but BPL does not track program attendance by contract community. Mechigian suggested that Craft ask the Village Manager about including library activities on the Village website.

7. Phase 3: Renovation Update:

Craft provided a Phase 3 renovation update and shared a slideshow of progress photos, which can be found on pages 48-59 of the April Board packet. The entrance stairs were noncompliant with building code and are being demolished and repoured. Due to this, project completion is delayed by 8 to 9 weeks. A Phase 3 Open House is scheduled for September 15, 2024.

8. New & Miscellaneous Business:

Discussion of the formation of a Development subcommittee of the Library Board

At the February Board meeting, Friedman asked the Board to establish a subcommittee specifically for fundraising. Craft compiled background information for this discussion, which can be found on pages 80-81 of the April Board packet.

Friedman elaborated on possible future needs and key improvements the Library given its popularity in the community. However, after discussion with Craft she finds it is important to spend additional time developing community relationships during her first year as trustee. Friedman recommended postponing a vote on establishing said subcommittee.

The Board held discussion on this matter. The Library hosted a successful fundraising event to fund Phase 2, and any subcommittees regarding fundraising should be ad hoc for specific projects, as in the aforementioned case. After Phase 3 is completed, there was general agreement that the Board should pause on any future building developments for the time being. Appeal letters could seem distasteful immediately after taxpayers funded Phase 3 improvements, and appeal letters are already sent by the Friends annually. In addition, there was general agreement that Craft deserves a year without construction. Ultimately, the Board agreed to not establish a subcommittee at this time, and in the future, an ad hoc committee may be created for specific fundraising events.

Motion to not establish a Development Committee at this time.

Policy Committee Update

Upon review of our Volunteer Policy by Teen Librarian Elisabeth Phou, she noticed that the grade range listed for teen volunteers does not currently match our existing practices. Elisabeth has requested that the policy be changed to state that Volunteens must be in grades 7 through 12. The following page includes one redline update to the policy for the Board to review and approve at the May 2024 Board meeting.

Suggested Board action: To make a motion to adopt the proposed grade change for teen volunteers in the Volunteer Policy.

The next meeting of the Policy Committee will take place on May 31, 2024 at 9:30 a.m. in the Delos Board Room. The Committee will review the following policies at that time: Library Card Policy, Fines and Fees Policy, Electronic Device, Network, and Internet Use Policy, Collection Development and Maintenance Policy, Fund Balance Policy, Credit Card Policy, Finance Policy, Trust Investment Policy, and Staff Development Policy. The Committee will also be reviewing a new Communications Policy.

Volunteer Policy

300 W. Merrill St. Birmingham, MI 48009 | 248-647-1700 | www.baldwinlib.org

The Baldwin Public Library (BPL) shall use the services of volunteers to supplement the efforts of paid library staff in meeting demands for quality public service and to serve as a method to encourage members of the public to become familiar with their Library and the services being offered. BPL shall make use of the services of interested volunteers to supplement and not to replace the work done by BPL staff. All volunteers must be approved by the Library Director or designated staff.

I. Categories of Volunteers

- Community Service Workers Persons referred by the courts of Oakland County to BPL for community service work.
- General Members of the public who wish to volunteer their time in support of BPL
- Volunteens Students in grades 7 9 to 12 who are either required by their school to volunteer in community agencies as a requirement for graduation or who are looking for a way to spend their free time giving back to their community
- Baldwin Boosters Summer reading volunteers ages 11 to 14. Boosters earn community service hours by helping with the Youth Summer Reading Program.

II. Coordinators

Each department will develop a list of tasks appropriate for Community Service Workers. The Department Head will provide oversight once the volunteer has been assigned.

- A. The Administrative Assistant acts as the Coordinator for Community Service workers. The Administrative Assistant will assign the volunteer to various departments based on the needs of the department
- B. The Teen Librarian acts as the Coordinator for Volunteens.
- C. A Youth Librarian acts as the Coordinator for the Baldwin Boosters.
- D. The Access Services, and Adult Department Heads act as the Coordinator for general adult volunteers.

III. Recognition

- A. Community Service Workers The Administrative Assistant will verify satisfactory performance level and the number of hours worked to fulfill the court requirements.
- B. Volunteers Recognition is an important component of a volunteer program and is often the only way in which BPL can say "Thank You." Volunteers will be formally recognized annually by BPL staff.
- C. Verification for Students The Coordinator will verify that these volunteers have satisfactorily completed the requirements for their volunteer activity and provide a letter for their school upon request.

D. Baldwin Boosters - The Coordinator will verify the number of volunteer hours completed by the student. A letter of appreciation is provided to the Booster, which includes the community service hours completed.

IV. General provisions

- A. Volunteers shall be recruited without regard to any individual race, creed, color, national origin, religion, marital status, sexual orientation, gender, physical appearance, socioeconomic level, education level, or any other legally protected characteristic.
- B. This Policy shall not be deemed a contract between the Volunteer and BPL. Both the volunteer and BPL have the right to terminate the Volunteer's association with BPL at any time, for any reason, with or without cause. BPL will not provide any medical, health, or compensation benefits to persons functioning as volunteers. Prior to engaging in any volunteer activity, each Volunteer will be required to submit a Volunteer Application form for volunteer work.
- C. Persons who will work with children must agree to a standard background check.
- D. Volunteer applications will be kept on file for one year.
- E. BPL cannot guarantee a set number of volunteer hours for any volunteer; volunteers are placed with departments as demand requires.

V. Duties

- A. Volunteers will be asked to complete mutually agreed upon projects that are supportive of staff efforts. The Coordinator will explain and assign the duties as needed.
- B. Volunteers who violate the BPL Code of Conduct will forfeit their volunteer opportunity.

VI. Hours

- A. In discussion with the Volunteer, the Coordinator(s) will determine the hours of the Volunteer's service. While BPL will attempt to accommodate the Volunteer's schedule, BPL cannot guarantee it. Volunteers are expected to arrive at BPL in time to begin work as scheduled or notify BPL if they will be absent.
- B. All volunteer work must be completed within open BPL hours. Community Service Workers who do not report for the scheduled shift or notify the Coordinator(s) of their absence may forfeit their volunteer opportunity.

Key Metrics & Strategic Plan Status Report

Action item updates and comparisons of actual statistics to projections are made on a quarterly basis—in the months of October, January, April, and July.

Programs & Services

Strategic goal: Adapt programs and services to meet the needs of the changing population Birbery (Birmingham Newbery)

The annual Birbery event was on held on Friday, May 10. Fifteen middle school students joined Stephanie Klimmek and their school librarians to discuss this year's nominees. After enjoying lunch, the students voted to choose "Iceberg" by Jennifer Nielsen as their winner, by a landslide.

Free Comic Book Day tables

The first Saturday of May is Free Comic Book Day, and we offered a selection of complimentary comics for all ages, along with superhero themed stickers and cookie cutters from the Idea Lab on May 4. Over the course of the day, 228 comics were taken home by BPL visitors.

Historical Tours

Tours of the Library with BPS second graders kicked off on May 7. As part of a thorough tour of downtown Birmingham, students come by for a walk through to learn the history of the Library, more on Martha Baldwin's impact on library services, about the great chandelier theft, and count how many times the main entrance of the Library has changed. Then, each student receives a token "skeleton key" cut especially for these groups in the Idea Lab, to help them remember their visit. In total, staff will give tours to 27 classrooms through May 23.

Seed Library – Potato Kits

Adult Services Reference Assistant Phoenix Nash added a new offering to the Seed Library this spring in the form of starter kits for growing potatoes. They were received enthusiastically, with all 35 kits being picked up from the seed library within a week.

TEENy Tiny Art Show

Teen Services Librarian Elisabeth Phou and Teen Services Assistant Sinjin Green coordinated the annual TEENy Tiny Art Show. After handing out small canvases and paint kits in March, the Teen Services team received eight pieces of tiny art back as submissions for the art show.

After three weeks of voting, the fans top three were:

- Cat in the Daisies by Iris H., age 15
- Spring Kisses by Giuliana R., age 13

Facility

Strategic goal: Create a welcoming, safe, and accessible building that meets the needs of our staff and users.

Staff Lounge Refresh
A small committee of staff members have been working to update the staff lounge.
Recently, a fresh coat of paint was applied, and furniture rearranged to optimize and freshen up the space for staff to use during their breaks. They are using endowment funds dedicated to the building, and credit card points to support this refresh.

Diversity and Equity

Strategic goal: Provide and promote equitable and inclusive resources and opportunities for all populations

IDEA (Inclusion, Diversity, Equity, Access) Task Force

The group continues to meet monthly to accomplish the goals set forth by the Library Board. The Committee is working together to implement action items from the 2022-2025 Strategic Plan Action Plan.

The task force will be hosting a workshop on the Safe Zone Project on June 5. The goal of this project is to help staff members to learn about LGBTQ+ identities, gender and sexuality, and examine prejudice, assumptions, and privilege.

The next "Working on Knowing Each Other" (WOKE) Book Club will be held on June 26 as staff meet to discuss Last Night at the Telegraph Club by Malinda Lo.

Project READY

The Youth Department will resume this curriculum in August.

Community Outreach and Partnerships

PHASE 3 RENOVATION
UPDATE:
May 2024

Phase 3 Updates: May 2024

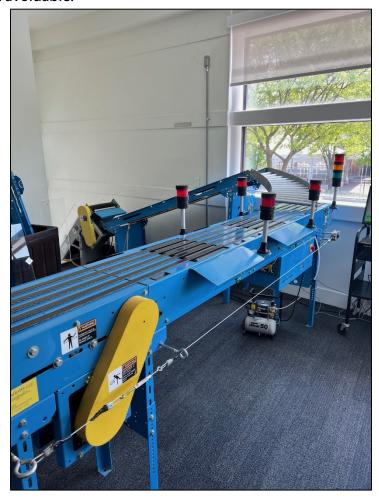

Since our last meeting, the furniture for the Merrill and Bates plaza has been installed and well used by visitors. Staff have even used the tables for meetings. This corner will be a lovely resting spot throughout the year. The landscaping is nearly complete and is filling in nicely.

A sprinkler line leftover from the original 1980 round garden bed is still live and is causing some leakage of water at the corner of the Youth Room. PCI Dailey has identified the source and will be capping the line next week.

The materials handling system "sorter" installation was completed on May 15. The initial quote for the work was $65,000. However, we had to pay an extra fee of $8,700 for two technicians to rewire and finalize use of the machine. When we disassembled the unit in June 2023, we had to cut the wires on the machine in order to separate the pieces and relocate it to the lower level. Our only storage option was in the lower level due to first floor construction, so this fee was not avoidable.

A walk through will be held on Monday, May 20 to develop the final punch list for the project. PCI Dailey plans to turn the building over to us and reopen the front entrance by mid-June.

The following items will need to be completed before we reopen the front entrance:

- Shade corrections/replacements are slated to be completed on Monday, May 20.
- The new tile stairs should be completed by Friday, May 17.
- Floor grilles will be arriving on May 17 and installation should be complete by Friday, May 24.
- The Nanawall trim is being delivered May 16 and will be installed on Monday, May 20
- Additional plaster patching and cleaning of the ramp is scheduled for Friday, May 17
- A couple sprinkler caps need to be replaced and will be installed the week of May 20.
- Concrete corrections will be completed by Friday, May 17.

• The temporary wall will be removed the last week of May. At that time, painting, patching and cleanup will also occur, pending final approvals.

Our Ribbon Cutting and Open House will be held on Sunday, September 15, 2024, from 1:00 to 3:00 p.m.

Owner-Architect-Contractor (OAC) Meetings

The last OAC meeting was held on April 17, at which time an intermediate punch list was created. Since then, OAC meetings have been suspended while we wait for the staircase to be completed and for contractors to complete items from the punch list.

The next OAC meeting will be held on Monday, May 20, 2024 at 11:00 a.m. At this meeting, the team will walk through the space and complete the final punch list.

Fines

226 said they don't collect fines on print materials from patrons, while 186 systems said they don't collect fines for non-print materials.

Hamlin said the Library of Michigan started tracking fine behavior years ago.

"In 2020, 15% of libraries had gone fine free, and then we had the pandemic in 2022 and we were at 44% who went fine free. Now, we're at 57%, so we've slowed down, but we are still moving in that direction of fine free," he said.

Library fines, Hamlin said, aren't changing behavior.

"It doesn't work. Libraries that are charging fines aren't seeing any difference in how often their materials come back while charging an overdue fine versus not charging an overdue fine. Another thing that has come back is the cost of collecting the fine in some cases will outweigh the fine itself. So if you have a 50 cent fine, how much staff time is going to collect 50 cents? And in most cases, it's way more than 50 cents-worth of pay. I also think a lot of libraries are looking to remove barriers to service, and fines can be a barrier," he added.

On April 1, the Bloomfield Township Public Library eliminated its overdue fines for books, DVDs, and other materials that are returned after their due date, also waiving existing overdue fine balances from patron accounts.

"We think that this makes the library more inclusive because it removes that barrier of overdue fines," said Moon. "It might be that somebody simply can't afford to pay the fine, and therefore, if they have a fine, that might shut them out from the library, or it might just be an inconvenience that makes people not want to use the library. We're hoping that this makes the library a more attractive, inclusive, convenient place for the whole community."

The change, according to Moon, will have a minimal impact on the library's budget, as overdue fines have accounted for 0.02% of revenues in recent years.

Many libraries nationwide that have eliminated overdue fines have reported either a negligible or even positive impact on the rate of items being returned on time, with more patrons returning items promptly, compared to when overdue fees were in place.

"Libraries that have made this move have found that return rates remain the same or even better. That has been a major concern that people are worried about, that popular items won't get returned on time and that it will increase hold times, but the research shows that people are more likely to return an item if they know they aren't going to have to pay that overdue fine," Moon said.

But going fine free doesn't mean there's no responsibility for library patrons.

"Fine free doesn't mean consequencefree. People will still be charged if they never return an item. ... We really want the item back. There are a lot of chances and a lot of notices that we are going to send to patrons to try to get those items back," said Moon.

Those who decide not to return an item or who keep something well beyond their due date will continue to be charged a replacement fee for lost or damaged books and materials. Patrons with $15 or more in fees on their account will not be able to borrow any more items until overdue items are returned or the fees are paid.

The Baldwin Public Library in Birmingham made the move to go fine free in 2021.

Birmingham Village Players to take audiences to 'The Prom'

BY MARY GENSON
mgenson@candgnews.com

BIRMINGHAM — Birmingham Village Players will be performing "The Prom," by Bob Martin and Chad Beguelin, May 3-19.

In "The Prom," Emma, a small-town high school student, dreams of taking her girlfriend to senior prom, but the school's homophobic PTA gets in the way. Her story shows up on Twitter and catches the eye of four broadway stars who see an opportunity to rehabilitate their images as celebrity activists.

Two of the Birmingham Village Players actors who play these narcissistic Broadway has-beens are Kendall Doman, in the role of Dee Dee Allen, and Jamie Richards, in the role of Barry Glickman.

Doman said one of the things that drew her to the show was the soundtrack.

"I fell in love with the music," Doman said. "There's not a bad song in the show, in my opinion. Some are fast; some are slow, but they all catch you."

Doman said she likes how the messages in the show can resonate with people. Many people can relate to wanting to be accepted and included as a teenager.

While the tone of the musical is bright and comedic, it addresses heavy topics, such as homophobia.

"It is this really hysterical comedy that also has the most beautiful message to it, and it delivers that message in a fun and funny way," Richards said.

One of Richard's favorite parts of the play is "Tonight Belongs to You," which Barry performs alongside the cast as they get Emma ready for prom.

"This show is so well written. I just love saying these lines. I love saying these words and, hopefully, the audience will like Barry as much as I like Barry," Richards said.

Richards is returning to the Birmingham Village Players after years away and shared how fun this experience has been.

"This has been very fun and enjoyable, and I am very glad that I did it," Richards said.

This show was made possible with the support of Birmingham Village Players' Red Carpet Sponsor of the Season Ameritax Plus of Berkley.

Performances will be held at 8 p.m. on Friday and Saturday nights, May 3-4, 10-11 and 17-18, and at 2 p.m. Sundays May 5, 12 and 19. Tickets can be reserved for $25, which includes the ticketing fee. To purchase tickets, call the box office at (248) 644-2075 or visit the website birminghamvillageplayers.com.

Michigan Builds Website of Resources to Teach Media Literacy

A website created by state and university partners in Michigan offers free interactive content, games and videos to teach students about media, news, and differences between fact and opinion.

Most students have probably heard the term "fake news" by now, but do they really know what it means?

To teach children how to discern truth from fiction, and to educate them on a topic they may not have learned about before, the Library of Michigan has launched a free resource, "Wonder Media," the state's Department of Education announced recently.

A collaboration between Western Michigan University (WMU), the Kalamazoo Valley Museum and the Library of Michigan, the website provides an interactive toolkit that allows users to learn about media and news literacy by exploring the topics of daily media use, the history of media, media as a business, the construction of social media posts, and how algorithms work, according to a recent news release.

The target audience is students between the ages of 11 and 14, though some of the site's games, videos and lessons are suitable for 10-year-olds. The main goal is to provide users the ability to understand varying forms electronic and print media, why people use them, how people use them, and how to analyze news stories and determine their credibility and accuracy, the news release said.

"The Library of Michigan is proud to be a part of a project that combats the spread of misinformation online," State Librarian Randy Riley said in a public statement. "Public library staff, now more than ever, need tools and resources to create meaningful and important programming to do so, and it is very exciting to know this toolkit is available."

These online and interactive materials originated as a temporary exhibit at the Kalamazoo Valley Library. State library and WMU employees were so impressed by it that they decided to make it a permanent resource that anyone in the world can access, Cathy Lancaster, Library of Michigan youth services coordinator, told Government Technology on Tuesday.

"We assume they [site users] are starting with a blank slate where they don't know how to trust the timeline of the news source," Lancaster said. "Digital media, especially social media, comes at them so much faster now. It's important that they learn how to recognize where that information is coming from."

The site is brand agnostic and nonpolitical. It identifies the largest media conglomerates, but it does not endorse any news publications, social media platforms or companies.

On the "Whack a Fact" game page, users select fact or opinion in 12 different slides. The questions range from, "the Detroit Lions are the hardest-working football team," to "pizza was invented more than 200 years ago in Italy," to "school days really have to be shorter than seven hours a day."

The "Same Message/Different Meaning" page on the site lists various responses to the question "What does the U.S. flag mean to you?" from a cross section of the United States. A college student notes that the flag, in connection with the National Anthem, says it means we value wars to achieve our freedoms. A middle-aged Columbian immigrant answered that the flag means liberty, opportunity and family. An elderly veteran says the flag represents a world standard for freedom and acceptance. A high school history teacher identifies it as an interesting experiment of weaving 50 states with 50 different identities into one country. An activist said it symbolizes hope but also covers up important history about the nation's justice system.

"This is very much needed," Lancaster said of the Wonder Media website. "There's a lot of talk about news and media literacy, but where else can you provide lessons and games in a fun and interesting way?"

State Superintendent Michael Rice said in a public statement that improving childhood literacy remains a top priority — that in addition to learning how to read, "our students also need to understand the different forms of news media and how to analyze media to determine accuracy and credibility."

Bills would require Michigan schools to have libraries, certified librarians

Published April 18, 2024 | Jon King

MICHIGAN LIBRARY ADVOCACY Day was marked Tuesday at the state Capitol in Lansing

A package of bills that would require a library and certified librarian in every Michigan public school got its first hearing Tuesday.

Introduced last month by state Sens. Darrin Camilleri, D-Trenton, and Rosemary Bayer, D-West Bloomfield, the bills came before the Senate Education Committee and were met with a mostly positive reception.

Camilleri opened up the testimony by noting he had been working on the bill package for six years and was grateful it was finally getting a hearing.

"I remember the school library being one of the best parts of being a student, especially in elementary school, but even in high school as well, where I could pull out a book, talk about it with my librarian and explore a new idea or a new concept or just read something for fun," said Camilleri. "And there are far too many situations where students don't have those opportunities anymore, where that love of learning is not fostered in that space and we need to do something about it, which is why we're here today."

The three-bill package includes Senate Bills 741 and 742, both sponsored by Camilleri, that would require every school district in Michigan to offer a library that is accessible to students and offers resources in both electronic and print form, while also employing at least one certified school librarian, with varying requirements depending on enrollment numbers.

Senate Bill 743, sponsored by Bayer, would require a principal or other appropriate administrator to designate an individual to supervise students in a school library when a certified media specialist is not present.

Camilleri said his awareness of this issue began when he was a high school teacher in southwest Detroit, and was shocked to find that the school did not have a library where students could go to check out books.

"They had a room with computers, but not a single book was in that room," he said. "Before that, I thought every school had a library, that was a given. But as I would continue to look into this issue more deeply in the years that followed, I came to find how common this is becoming in schools across our state, especially with the proliferation of the internet and digital resources, school libraries are increasingly being seen as an afterthought."

Camilleri said the argument that school libraries no longer have relevance in the internet age is completely missing the point.

"In my opinion, the exact opposite is true. You need to have those materials in front of our students now more than ever," he argued, adding that with a certified full-time librarian, students would also have the opportunity to learn research skills, have a safe space to learn and hopefully develop a lifelong love of reading.

Camilleri said less than 10% of Michigan schools that have school libraries are staffed by a certified full-time school librarian.

"And our reading scores remain low. It's another piece here that's so important. This is an equity issue," he said. "If you want to help improve literacy outcomes, we need to help all students have the resources they need to succeed, including grade level aligned texts and knowledgeable accessible school librarians.

Bayer added that now more than ever there is a need for students to learn how to properly access information and know where to find quality sources.

"In addition to books, we have this whole world of sometimes misleading, just plain wrong information and we need some help and our kids need some help," she said.

"How do we navigate that? How do we make sure that they know how to see what it is, understand what it is they're really seeing?"

While various members shared fond memories of their experiences in school libraries, state Sen. Ruth Johnson, R-Holly, did express concern about how such a mandate might affect small, more rural districts.

To that point, Camilleri said that one of the challenges he has faced in crafting the bills is that there isn't definitive data about which schools offer school libraries, and which ones have fully certified school librarians staffing them. However, he did note that the bills have different implementation standards depending on population requirements.

Schools with fewer than 300 pupils, at least one half-time certified school librarian would be required, while a school with between 300 and 1,499 pupils would need at least one full-time certified school librarian. Those schools with 1,500 or more pupils, meanwhile, would require at least two full-time certified school librarians. However, schools with fewer than 51 students could obtain a waiver from the Michigan Department of Education to opt out of the requirements altogether.

Other issues raised concerned the potential cost of implementing the bills. An analysis from the nonpartisan Senate Fiscal Agency determined that the bills could cost school districts across the state as much as $403.7 million per year, although those costs could be lower depending on what applicable resources districts were already budgeting for.

"When we are at times of extreme economic downturn, I'm concerned about putting a mandate in that will then force schools to cut teacher salaries, cut transportation, and have the library held whole," said Sen. Kristen McDonald Rivet, D-Bay City. "So when we have to make really tough choices, are there ways that we don't lose teachers in order to have a staff library? I don't love that choice, but it is a reality that at some point in time we are likely to get into that situation again."

Camilleri said that at least a portion of the funding would hopefully come directly from the state, noting that the proposed budget reported Tuesday morning out of the Pre-K-12 Appropriations Subcommittee invested $25 million in school libraries.

"Is there a need for more? Absolutely," he said, adding that they hoped to talk with school districts already meeting the standards and figuring out how to build those costs into their budgets.

Another issue discussed was the capacity to hire enough certified school librarians. Committee Chair Dayna Polehanki, D-Livonia, a public school teacher for more than 20 years, said there was only one Michigan educational prep institution offering a media endorsement course for certified teachers and it only had about 20 openings each year.

"So there may be a necessity to move the implementation date ahead a little bit just in order to accommodate the ramping up that's going to be needed to see this to fruition," she said.

"We're open to all creative solutions to get this bill passed," replied Camilleri, who also indicated he was flexible in potentially adding into the legislation the ability of some districts to share certified librarians.

Also testifying in favor of the bills was Kathy Lester, the immediate past president of the Michigan Association of School Libraries, who said approximately 49% of Michigan schools have no library staff, while Michigan is ranked 46th in the nation in terms of the ratio of students to certified school librarians.

"This correlates very closely with our low literacy achievement scores," she said, calling it a matter of equal access for students.

Amy O'Brien, a parent and former substitute teacher living in Wayne County's Van Buren School District assisted in the Belleville High School Media Center last year, after their full-time librarian had left just before the COVID-19 pandemic and was not replaced.

"Being a substitute in the library gave me a broader perspective than what I had had as a parent," she told the committee. "A school library is a safe space. It doesn't expect a student to be in a certain learning group or functioning at a certain academic level. It meets our children where they are at, no exceptions."

However, the library was only open when she was present on Tuesdays and Thursdays, and because she wasn't a certified school librarian, she wasn't able to give the staff or students the full support that they would have if she had been, including expertise in the selection of resources, as well as teaching lessons on information literacy and integrated technology.

"I believe that all parents want their children to have a complete and equitable academic base for their studies," O'Brien said. "That includes having a fully staffed library with a certified librarian in every school from kindergarten through 12th grade. The teaching and support that certified librarians provide should not be abandoned. Student success depends on it."

Digital reading soars in Seattle, creating problems for local libraries

The Seattle region loves to read. The city is one of just two UNESCO cities of literature in the country.

"We just have voracious readers in Seattle," said Elena Gutierrez, collection services manager at Seattle Public Library.

In the past four years, reading in the city has also shifted away from print books and toward digital options, like e-books and e-audiobooks.

Seattle Public Library is number eight in the world when it comes to digital checkouts from Overdrive, a global distributor of digital books and makers of the Libby app. King County Library System is third. Seattle is the only metro area that appears on the list twice.

Digital reading is convenient — no print book to drag around. It also makes stories and information more accessible for many with disabilities, including dyslexia and vision impairment.

But the increasing demand for digital books is causing problems for local libraries. Last month, SPL announced it was reducing the number of digital holds patrons can place from 25 down to 10.

The reason: Digital books are extremely expensive for libraries, even though they're generally cheaper than print books for an individual consumer.

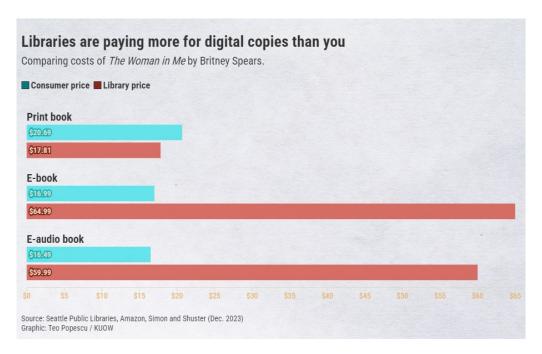

"I've seen three to 10 times as much charged to a library for the same exact material," said Kyle Courtney, the director of copyright information policy at Harvard Library. Courtney is also a founder of the eBook Study Group, a nonprofit working to make digital materials more affordable for libraries across the country.

Gutierrez pointed to Brittney Spears' 2023 memoir "The Woman In Me" as a prime example of the budget challenges that e-books pose. SPL paid the book's publisher $17.81 for each physical copy it bought, a few dollars cheaper than what an individual would pay in a bookstore.

Electronic copies were a totally different story. The e-book and e-audiobook are about $17 for a consumer, but the library paid more than three times that price: $64.99 for an e-book and $59.99 for a digital audiobook.

Combine the increasing demand for digital books and the higher prices, and things add up quickly.

"In total, the library's physical copies at one point were $2,500 that we had invested," Gutierrez said. "But the digital copies cost us $35,000."

That price tag is only the start of the story. Publishers largely don't allow libraries to own digital books outright — they have to license them for a set period of time or a set number of checkouts.

In the case of "The Woman In Me," each copy is only rented to the library for two years, then they have to pay again to keep using it.

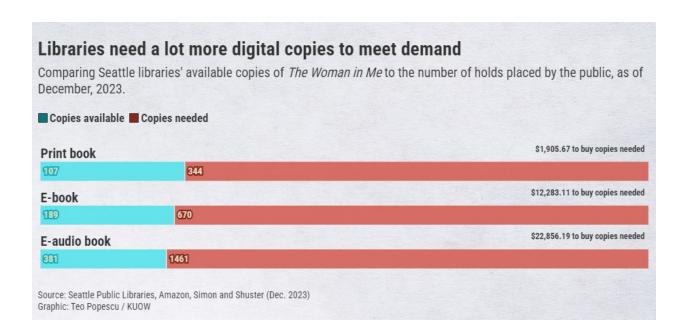

"It's like throwing money directly out a window," Courtney said.

It's a challenge that library systems across the country are struggling with, from small local organizations to the nation's biggest research institutions.

"My fear is that e-book licenses as they currently are turn libraries into Netflix and Hulu. We don't own anything. We have to continually pay for it and can go away at a moment's notice," Courtney said. "That idea of, 'last day to see this series,' right? You see that on Netflix and Hulu all the time. It's literally what's happening to our collections libraries. They're disappearing unless we pay more."

Seattle Public Library buys new digital books for one of two reasons: First, when a new book is published. And second, when there's high demand for a given title. One of the library's goals is to keep hold waits down.

As of publishing, the e-book title with the longest hold line was "The Heaven & Earth Grocery Store" by James McBride. SPL has licenses for 300 copies, but more than 2,000 patrons had the book on hold. It would take someone joining the list roughly three months to get a copy.

By reducing the number of holds each patron can place, the library is essentially asking readers to be more choosy about which books to get in line for. Gutierrez said it's already having an impact on their budget.

"We have reduced the costs for holds by a significant amount," she said. That means the library can put that money toward other titles.

"We want depth and breadth to the collection. We want to be able to offer a variety of titles and not just feed the best sellers," Gutierrez said. "So, this allows us to have funds redistributed also to acquire new content rather than have hundreds of copies of fewer titles."

While adjusting policies may offer short-term relief, Courtney said the larger issue of e-book licensing isn't likely to change without intervention.

He's working with states across the country to introduce legislation that would use existing consumer protection and contract laws to bring costs down. It would work in a similar way to net neutrality laws that prevent internet service providers from giving certain online activities or sites preferential treatment.

"We're saying, 'Dear publishers, you want to do business in this state? Whatever state adopts this particular law? Well, we have millions and millions of dollars, so the contract needs to be reflective of the library mission and include these terms or forbid these terms," Courtney said.

The Washington Library Association has drafted a bill in partnership with the eBook Study Group and is hoping to introduce it during next year's legislative session. A spokesperson for the group said they've started having preliminary discussions with state lawmakers on the issue.

In the meantime, local libraries offer lists of books that are available to check out with no wait through the e-book and audiobook app Libby. And many local libraries, including Seattle Public Library and the King County Library System, offer cross-system access for Washington residents looking for their next read.

| Endowment Funds' Performance Comp to Blended Return of Benchmarks | oared -2.09% | -9.76% |

^{*}Since November 2017, the blended return has been calculated according to the Baldwin Endowment Funds' allocation of 75% equities and 25% fixed income, cash, and cash alternatives.

As of April 2020, this report was renamed "Endowment Funds Portfolio Performance Benchmarks," instead of "Portfolio Performance Benchmarks." The new title is more accurate, for it states clearly that the comparison between benchmarks and the Baldwin Trust's performance pertains only to the BPL Trust Endowment Funds Account at Raymond James. It does not take into account the BPL Trust General Funds Account at Raymond James or the Trust's Huntington Bank checking and money market accounts. The breakdown of the Trust's various accounts is shown on the "Balances by Financial Institutions Report," which follows this report in the Board packet. As of April 30, 2024, the breakdown was as follows:

| Total | $ 2,242,380.07 |
|---|--------------------|
| Huntington Bank Money Market Account | $358,43894 |
| Huntington Bank Checking Account | $3,724.02 |
| Raymond James Building Mutual Funds Account | $718,093.37 |
| Raymond James Endowment Funds Account | $1,162,123.74 |

Our Huntington Bank checking account and money market account have no stock or bond investments at all, and are non-volatile. All of the funds donated for the Library's Youth Room expansion and renovation are in our Huntington Bank money market account and are therefore safe from market fluctuation.
